This Annual Report is an attempt on the part of the Division of Indian Education to show what is taking place in the public schools of South Dakota for the education of their Indian students.

An item of possible interest is a listing in the Appendix of the state's Johnson O'Malley schools' Public Law 89-10, Title I projects.

I want to thank all who have helped me in this my first year as Director of this Division. If anyone should have any questions about anything in this report, please do not hesitate to contact me.

ANNUAL REPORT NARRATIVE

The 1965-66 School Year marked the 17th year for a Johnson O'Malley Contract between the State of South Dakota and the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Department of the Interior. In the State of South Dakota the Johnson O'Malley Program is administered by the Division of Indian Education in the Department of Public Instruction. During that year forty-two school districts enrolling over three thousand Indian students made application under this program and received over one half million dollars in assistance.

The main concern of the Division of Indian Education has been the prompt and accurate payment to the school districts. For the first time in many years all schools were reimbursed by October 1st. Fiscal 1966 marked the first time in several years that the Division did not need to pro-rate Johnson O'Malley obligations to the school districts.

Besides administering the Johnson O'Malley program, the Division administered the South Dakota Indian Scholarship Fund. This program provides financial aid not to exceed $350.00 per year per award to Indian college students. During the 1965-66 school year, 65 students were given assistance under this program. The money for this program is appropriated by the State Legislature.

Reorganization of school districts in South Dakota is moving along steadily. Most of the reorganization that affected JOM schools took place in Roberts County where Peever closed its high school and many Common School Districts, such as Lawrence #1 and Spring Grove #2, joined either the Sisseton Public Schools or the Wilmot school system. One other high school to close was at Belvidere in Jackson County. The Bureau closed day schools at Iron Lightning and Thunder Butte in Zeibach County. These children are being transported into Dupree or are boarding at the Cheyanne Eagle Butte Boarding School. With the reorganization of school districts in South Dakota we are getting more efficient educational opportunities for Indian children.

With the inception of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, the Division has felt strongly that the majority of the services provided under this law must be directed at the needs of our Indian children in the JOM schools. This office has worked closely with school districts in initiating their Title I project, and with State Title I Coordinators Office in approving those projects involving Indian children.
